

ABSTRACT

A plurality of solenoid valves are mounted onto an upper face of a manifold with solenoid operating portions of the solenoid valves projecting on a side of a first side face of the manifold. Onto the first side face, a board including an electric circuit for feeding the solenoid valves is detachably mounted in a vertical orientation under the solenoid operating portions. On the board, feeding connectors and indicating lights are respectively provided in positions corresponding to the respective solenoid valves.